JANESVILLE AS IT
WAS 50 YEARS AGO

Nate Ballard, Now of Evansville, Lived Here on First Coming From New York.
Nate Ballard of Evansville was here yesterday and became reminiscent. "Fifty-eight years ago we came from New York state," said he, "and took up our home at the old Rock River house. There old stage house and a few other buildings made up the business portion of Janesville. We moved to Evansville the following year, where I have lived since. In the old days the stage line from Milwaukee to Madison passed through here and changed teams. The greater part of a week was consumed in the trip. Mr. Ballard had not visited North Main street and that portion of the city until today in over thirty years.

FREIGHT BUSINESS
IS NOW VERY GOOD

Amount of Freight Handled by the North-Western During Last 30 Days Large.
During the last 30 days the freight business has picked up wonderfully over the route running through here.
Large amounts of stock come through every day and supplies are constantly being sent north to bring the cattle down.
All other kinds of freight are being handled in large quantities, both through and local. The local freight has increased as well as through freight.
An extra switch-engine was put on by the North-Western road in order to handle the cars.
The increase not only brings the amount handled up to that of good times, but is above it.

North-Western Road
Sharon has been reopened as a telegraph station from 5 a. m. until 11
p. m. and Shopley is now a continuous station, another operator having been put on.

Up to Date in Agriculture.
However conservative the farmer is about his politics and his religion and his views on morality, he has rid himself of most of his old-time fixed ideas about agriculture and is leading the professional state experimentalists in the search for new methods.—Toledo

League Baseball Results.
New York, playing in form far below that shown in the recent series with her close rivals, suffered a serious setback in the National league pennant race Friday by dropping both games of a double-header to Cincinnati. Saturday morning her advantage over the Chicago team, which won in Brooklyn, was but a single point. Pittsburgh lost an opportunity to step into first place by losing one of the two games of the afternoon in Boston and was in third place, five points behind Chicago.

Detroit, in the American league, won twice from Philadelphia and regained second place, Chicago not playing and dropping to third position. Cleveland lost and held first place by but two points advantage over Detroit. St.
Louis also lost and was ten points behind Chicago, with but 16 points, however, separating her from the leaders.

Following is the standing of the clubs in the two leagues:

the fall of the Wright aeroplane at Fort Myer a few days ago, was held at Arlington National cemetery Friday. The Episcopal burial rite was which plays him so often with a good

GOOD PROGRAM FOR COMING YEAR'S WORK

Physical Director F. E. Birch Will Introduce New Features This Winter.

During the coming winter and next spring a number of new stunts will be introduced in the gymnasium work at the Y. M. C. A. by F. E. Birch, the new physical director. Cross country teams, a championship basketball team and outdoor work for all classes, and special work for those needing it will be among the features.

In January the work of developing a cross country team will be begun.
The work will be very light at first and the length of the runs will be gradually increased. Some time in the spring a relay race between the Janesville and Beloit Y. M. C. A. teams is planned. There will be fourteen runners on each team and each will run a mile. The last Beloit runner will finish at Janesville and the Janesville runner will finish in Beloit, thus giving each place a slight of a dash.

More care will be put on the coaching of the basketball team this winter. Special playing which has never before been tried here will be an important feature. Each spot on the floor will be numbered and all the team plays will be worked out so that as soon as any man obtains the ball he will know exactly what to do with it. Mr. Birch is very hopeful of turning out a championship team this year. On next Thursday evening in the association building a meeting of all of last year's basketball squad will be held to elect a captain for the coming season.

Monday September 28th will be the opening day for the classes.

ganization of First District Met Here This Week.

For the purpose of appointing members of the various committees, the board of directors of the First District, Wisconsin State Federation of Women's clubs, held a meeting here Wednesday with Mrs. C. A. Emerson of Beloit in the chair. The heads of these committees were named at the annual meeting in Racine last April.

Junction, Mrs. H. C. Smith of Racine.

Janesville, chairman; balance of the committee to be selected by the chairman.

The Medical Expert.
Of all men, the medical expert is not to be taken too seriously, for by training he is an idealist, while the defence always paid to him by his patients inclines him to be over dogmatic.—Men's Wear.

Seek to Revive Old Industry.
A thousand millinery trees have been planted at Seville, Spain, in an attempt to revive the silk industry,
for which the city was once famous.

Thoughtful Girl.
"Can you take a little care of that end of mine?" implored the imperious girl to the office boy who was rapidly rolling it into a ball, "and bring it back to me so I can send it in somewhere else? Cards cost me a cent apiece."

KINDERGARTEN HAS RESUMED ITS WORK

Congregational Young Ladies Will Care for Children Under Ten
During Services.

The church kindergarten of the Congregational church has resumed its work for the winter and will care for any child under ten years of age
while the mothers are in attendance on the morning service. The young ladies who have this work in charge have carried it on very successfully for two years. New materials are being secured and the hours spent here promise to be helpful to the children as well as to the mothers. Children under kindergarten age are also cared for.

Quaint Fijian Plant.
There is nothing under the sun quite so quaint, so weird and withalike as the pandanus gradus of Fiji. The pandanus, or screw plant, as it is called, is a most grotesque specimen of the vegetable kingdom even at the best and in the early stages of its growth. In its very young days it is of an extraordinary screwlike shape and looks as though some unkind hand had taken hold of its long, scordlike leaves and twisted them round and round. Later on it straightens out a bit and from it grow a number of tall wooden stilts. Its foliage is simple, a number of drooping, rugged tufts for all the world like moss, and very mournful looking. Among these moss hangs the fruit, in shape like a pineapple, made up of hard red and yellow kernels, woody and fibrous, and quite unpleasant from a European's point of view.

Sleep Walking.
Men, who men, consider that sleep walking is nearly related to a state of hypnosis and they call it spontaneous communalism as distinguished from artificial somnambulism, hypnotism.
Some persons are subject to both states and are practically the same under both conditions, save that in sleep walking they are less amenable to directions.

The Philosopher of Polly.
"I'd rather have my rich relatives pony up while they're alive," says the Philosopher of Polly, "than to depend on what they are going to leave me.
In other words, I can't take the will
for the deed."

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

Here's to the man with a kindly face, And a gentle, patient soul, The man who can win or lose the race With a perfect self-control.

He's right on deck with a word of cheer, And a helpful lift for all; And the touch of his hand will banish fear.

When your drooping spirits fall; He's an inspiration, a help, a host, And he makes you think you can't fail.

So, here's to the man no life is apart; The grand, good-natured man.

When Secretary Taft stood on the platform of his car, the other day, and looked into the faces of the throng which crowded the street, waiting eagerly for his first word, the genial, good-natured smile which spread over his face was captivating, and it was not difficult to realize that here was a great man, not spoiled by greatness.

Much the same feeling prevailed today, when Mr. Bryan stood before the same audience and beamed upon them with a smile noted for blandness and good-fellowship.

and pleasant word of good cheer will continue to greet the people.

If there is any experience in life which tries men's souls, and brings to the surface characteristics of strength or weakness, it is found in a national campaign, and the season now on has passed from a stage of lethargy to a bombardment all along the line, with plenty of fireworks thrown in.

The highlight pictures thrown on the canvas by the Hearst panorama, with a change of program at every performance, supplemented by the big stick in the hands of a president possessing ability to swing it, is brushing away the cobwebs and cracking the skulls of many public servants who imagined themselves immune from attacks from any quarter.

Senator Foraker of Ohio, recognized for many years as one of the ablest men in the upper house of congress, enjoying a reputation above reproach, suddenly finds himself in the meshes of an unlooked-for entanglement, and losing his temper, completes the work of political suicide.

The carpet-bag governor of Oklahoma, who startled the country and captured the Denver convention, by his brief but brilliant career as a reform statesman, retires in the limelight of the moving picture show, consoled by a but from the big stick.

Other men who have felt secure in their position, will appear on the surface as the campaign progresses, and retire from the scene to be forgotten.

Bryan, whose honesty of purpose is not questioned, wears warm under the collar, but retains his good nature, and when the contest closes, the smiles that never wear off will continue to greet his friends while he prepares for his next race in 1912.

Taft, untroubled and happy, pursues the even tenor of his way, the big good-natured American citizen whose presence in the White house will be like a ray of sunshine, if he inherits the big stick of his vigorous predecessor, it will be transformed to be used as a last resort, and after courts and juries have failed in their mission.

Blessed is the man or woman who possesses a happy temperament and good natural disposition. They represent graces of character which money can not buy, and whose value is beyond compute.

They are to the home what the bubbling spring is to the dry and parched landscape. A source of joy in the monotony and humdrum existence of every day life. The wife who can throw off the cares and worries of a life prescribed in the narrow circle where her days are spent, and meet the husband with a smile and cordial greeting as he comes in weary from the day's work, is the wife who is a helpmate in deed as well as in name.

The mother who possesses the happy faculty of governing the children with good natured request rather than with harsh command has discovered the secret of family government and the teacher who possesses the same faculty, is the successful teacher.

The man who meets the world with a smile meets a smiling world for there is something contagious about good nature and its reciprocal value is not always appreciated.

Wealth is desirable but frequently beyond our grasp. Fame is a floating thing and often vanishes, but good nature represents capital within easy reach, which accumulates by investment and yields returns which are never disappointing.

Just 'Fore 'lection. I'm a whinny politician, and both feet are in the trough; well have as bad memories as our Joe Bailey. All politicians should cultivate bad memory. It is a mighty handy thing to have ready.

Scandal in School Circles. St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Oklahoma has passed its law as the schoolmaster of the nation to consider if it has made a bad mistake in choosing its head of the faculty.

They Have Their Reward. Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The Appleton Post has discovered that it is a good deal cheaper for a democrat to get nominated to office in this state than it is for a republican. Well, considering what he is likely to get out of it, it ought to be.

Anna's Better Side. Exchange: Anna Held has surprised her American friends by bringing over to America a daughter who is eight years of age. Nobody ever knew Anna had a daughter, but none wonder that she left the child at home, remembering some of the songs Anna has sung to us.

A Blessing Pushed Too Far. Evening Wisconsin: The Chicago Tribune puts a plain truth very mildly when it remarks that the lovers of fresh fish owe something to cold storage, but that when the system takes a whitish out of Lake Michigan and holds that fish in reserve a year and a half it is "overdoing the business."

Odd But Familiar Tactics. Detroit Free Press: While declaring himself the heir of the Roosevelt policy, Bryan is denouncing the policy in several speeches a day, but that doesn't seem to hurt him.

Not So Noddy Perhaps. Beloit Free Press: At Janesville the crowd was not nearly so large as here, although the hour was fully an hour later. Mr. Taft, mainly because of his hour, spoke briefly there, criticizing the general attitude of Mr. Bryan in this campaign. The Janesville committee may have been well organized and may have been well noticed officially, but Beloit, the sleepy county seat hamlet in every respect this morning.

The Presidential Come-Back. Milwaukee Free Press: Mr. Bryan's recent attempt to force upon President Roosevelt the washing of his party's dirty linen has turned into a boomerang that landed pretty close to the democratic camp.

It was perhaps more than could be asked of mortal endurance to expect Mr. Bryan to investigate the head carpenter of his disjunct platform, the chief collector of his party's untold shakos—in a word, his beloved and trusted "man Friday."

But if he did not possess the confidence, the courage, the sense of public obligation and personal responsibility to satisfy himself and the people as to the truth of the damning charges that have been made against Gov. Haskell, he should have at least have had the good taste and political decency not to throw upon others the burden of proof.

Looked at from the standpoint of clever politics, that move, no doubt, was shared and well-advised. But one expects something better and higher than clever politics from an aspirant to the highest office within the gift of the American people.

HAD DONE WORK THOROUGHLY.

Corporal Literally Obeyed Orders of Post Commandant.

Gen. Clarence Edwards, chief of the insular bureau of the war department, tells how an Irish corporal got even with an unpopular post commander in Cuba. This post commander, though an excellent soldier, was something of a crank. He had two hobbies. One was that the liberal use of whitewash was the best possible preventive of disease, and the other was a pet flamingo, an ill-natured bird that was disliked heartily by the enlisted men because it never overlooked an opportunity to nip one of them.

One day the post commander had to go to Havana, but he could not endure the thought that anyone should be idle in his absence. It had been fully a week since any whitewashing had been done, so he issued an order that "all articles pertaining to the camp not sheltered from the weather" should be whitewashed. The Irish corporal was intrusted with the execution of the order.

The post commander returned next day, and pretty soon the air was filled with his cursing. The soldiers heard the noise, but they were not curious. They knew what it was all about. The post commander's brilliant flamingo was white as a snowy heron.

Pronged. "I have good reason," said the head of the establishment, addressing the cashier, according to the Chicago Record-Herald, "for believing that you are living beyond your means."

"You are mistaken sir. I am willing to have a thorough inspection of my accounts at any time."

"How does it happen, then, that you are able to have a big automobile?"

Heart to Heart Talks.

SAVED A MAN!

In Kansas City a man was arrested for stealing from the register of a telephone.

The thief? But wait.

A newspaper man saw a good story behind the arrest. He questioned the prisoner and went out to the home or hut on the outskirts of the city.

He learned this: The wife of the prisoner was ill. There were three children—and a dead baby. Because the man had to stay at home to nurse the wife he lost his place in the packing plant.

Then the baby died. There was no money for a funeral. And the sick wife cried because her baby was to be buried as a pauper. She begged to have "a little white coffin."

Put yourself in the man's place. He tried to borrow; he tried to get credit, at the undertaker's—in vain. Then in desperation he broke into the telephone box and was caught.

The newspaper man, an ardent friend in breeches, told the story in his newspaper. He put some heart into the story. The effect?

The police judge refused to hold the man when the telephone manager said he would not prosecute. An undertaker said he would furnish the coffin and wait for his fee. Neighbors made the family comfortable. A job was found for the man, who said through his tears, "I'll show the people I'm an honest man."

And they buried the dead baby in a little white coffin, borne to the cemetery in a white hearse. And there were carriages in the procession.

Pinel.

The heart of humanity is wondrous kind if you but know how to touch it. The sympathies of men and women are incomparably noble in response when once they are stirred. But the finest thing in all this Kansas City story is that—

Society saved a man!

Suppose—suppose in the hour of his desperation and temptation the world had turned its back upon this father? He would have gone to the penitentiary with hatred in his heart to become a hardened criminal. The sick wife might have died. The baby would have been buried in the potter's field. The three children would have been turned adrift.

At heart the man was not a thief. He jumped at the chance to show himself a man. He was saved in the nick of time—saved where many are lost because our society is loath to punish instead of salvation.

On the authority of the available inscriptions and of the tradition as recorded in the Ceylonese chronicles the date of the Nirvana of Buddha is found by the latest writer on the subject to be 487 B. CLINTON. Clinton, Sept. 26.—A large number of the interfiled and several of the members of the G. O. P. attended the Bryan meeting in Janesville today. The first meeting of the 20th Century club for this season is to be held at Mrs. P. R. Helmer's on Monday evening. As will be seen Clinton has four or five people already interested and in the list for the prize now being offered by the Clinton. A horse from Holmdelers that was here Friday evidently was not accustomed to such excitement as prevails in Clinton and became frightened and ran five miles into the country to get away from the commotion. The carriage was badly demolished. In some sections of the village of late there has been an emigration of an almost imperceptibly small white bug by the millions. What they are no one seems to know. Sharon and Clinton high school ball teams are to play here today. Miss Edith Parks of Delavan visited here recently. Mrs. Jerome Baker of Whitewater is visiting friends here. The remains of Henry Jacket were taken to Verona for burial on Saturday. The Clinton high school highly appreciates the gift of a good piano by Mrs. Dowling.

FINAL LINE-UP IS NOT YET SETTLED

High School Football Practice Continues in Spite of the Hot Weather.

Despite the absence of the long looked-for change in the weather, football practice at the high school here, ended briskly last week. However, the boys have not yet reached the usual standard, and it will not be until the first game, Oct. 3, with Lake Mills high school that a true line can be had on the season's prospects. One serious injury was held on Wednesday, Langdon and Casewell of the 1906 team appeared in tags to back up against the youngsters, and they were able to succeed by Wright and Mfield of last year's team, who are ineligible to play this year. Signal practice is advancing, and the candidates now to the game are betraying an encouraging improvement in their knowledge and practice. During the past few days the back field has been made up of Koch, Tippet and Tallman, with Fisher and Campbell alternating at quarter. Earl Tippet and Orr Laughlin, whose spirit and life have been the best sign of the week, have also been used in the back field and at end. The line has been made up of Shawyan, center, whose work is constantly improving; Kennedy, Sheridan and Snyder, guards; Wilkerson and Roberts, tackles; Campbell, Glenn Robertson, Frank Robertson, Palmer, Owen, E. Tippet and Laughlin, ends. Chandler Green, who last year played guard at Janesville, will be expected next week, as is Verno Perry, whose plays have so far attracted to his play. The boys are determined this year to win out the defense sustained at the hands of Evansville and Ft. Atkinson. Speed, spirit and grit will be depended upon to overcome the greater weight of their adversaries.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Dr. Frick at St. Peter's Church: At the morning service of St. Peter's English Lutheran church tomorrow the Rev. W. K. Frick, D. D., of the Church of the Redeemer, Milwaukee, will occupy the pulpit. Dr. Dame, who is a retired physician, will speak from his many experience in the past and an entertaining and profitable talk is promised. There will also be special vocal and instrumental music.

Dance at Johnstown: Mark Joyce's farm in Johnstown was the scene of a big barn dance last evening. Knecht & Hatch's orchestra played and a curvyall from Janesville conveyed to the scene a party including the Misses Kate Fanning, Anna Flanagan, Esther Schuch, and Annie Zillig. Mrs. Joyce is a brother-in-law of Miss Julia Pierce, former head waitress at the Hotel Myers.

Harvest Home Party: St. Mary's Court No. 175, W. C. O. P., will soon issue invitations for a Harvest Home dancing party to be given at Assembly hall on the evening of October 6.

New House: Carl Latcher will erect a residence on his lot in the Rebersburg addition and Edward Kelly has a house in process of construction on the same property.

Broke Up "Camping" Party: Officer William Mason journeyed 34 miles river last evening in pursuit of an informal camping party consisting of two seventeen year old girls and a couple of boys who, with their paraphernalia and a case of beer, were making a night of it out under the stars. The two youths escaped but the girls were brought back to the city and detained at the lock-up until morning. The parents at first desired to have them sent to the girls' industrial school in Milwaukee but subsequently relented and they were given another chance.

"It's now—she thrust—her hands—creeping into her soft palms, striving to contain herself and keep her tongue from crying aloud to those three brutal, blind men the truth; that she was guilty of the robbery, she with Anstey; that Maitland was—Maitland; a word synonymous with 'man of honor.'"

In the beginning, indeed, all that restrained her from doing so was her knowledge that Maitland would be more pained by her sacrifice than gladened or relieved. He was so sure of clearing himself. . . . It was inconceivable to her that there could be men so stupid and crassly unobservant as to be able to confuse the identity of the two men for a single instant. What though they did resemble each other in form and feature? The likeness went no deeper; below the surface, and rising through it with every word and look and gesture, lay a world-wide gulf of difference in every shade of thought, feeling, and instinct.

She herself could never again be deceived—no, never! Not for a second could she mistake the one for the other. . . . What were they saying?

The turmoil of her indignation subsided as she listened, breathlessly, to Maitland's story of his adventures; and the joy that leaped in her for his frank manliness in suppressing every incident that involved her, was all but overpowering. She could have wept for sheer happiness; and at a later time she would, but not now, when everything depended on her maintaining the very silence of death.

How dared they doubt him? The insolence! The crude brutal insolence of them! Her anger raged high again, and as swiftly was quenched, extinguished in a twinkling by a terror born of her excitement and a bare suggestion thrown out by Hickey.

" . . . explainin' how a crook like Anstey made three tries in one day to steal some jewels and didn't get 'em. Where were they, all this time?" Maitland's cool retort was lost upon her. What matter? If they discovered him, perished in calling him Anstey, in natural course they would undertake to search the flat. And if she were found. . . . Oh, she must spare him that! She had given him cause for suffering enough. She must get away, and that instantly, before . . . From a distance, to-morrow morning—to-night, even—by telegraph, she could communicate with him. . . . At this juncture O'Hagan entered with his parcel. The rustle of the paper as he brushed against the door-jamb was in itself a hint to a mind keyed to the highest pitch of excitement and seeking a way of escape from a position conceived to be perilous. In a trice the girl had turned and sped, lightfooted, to the door opening on the private hall.

Here, halting for a brief reconnaissance, she determined that her plan was feasible; if hazardous, she ran the risk of encountering some one ascending the stairs from the ground floor; but if she were cautious and quick she could turn back in time. On the other hand, the men whom she most feared were thoroughly occupied with their differences, dead to all save that which was happening within the room's four walls. A curtain hung perhaps a third of the way across the study door, tampering the light in the hall; and the broad shoulders of the easily obstructed the remainder of the opening.

It was a chance. She poised herself on tiptoe, half undecided, and— the rustling of paper as O'Hagan opened the parcel afforded her an opportunity to escape, by drowning the noise of her movements.

For two eternal seconds she was edging stealthily down toward the outer door; then, in no time at all, found herself on the landing and— confronted by a fresh complication, one unforeseen: how to leave the house without being observed, stopped, and perhaps detained until too late? There would be men at the door, beyond doubt; possibly police, stationed there to arrest all persons attempting to leave.

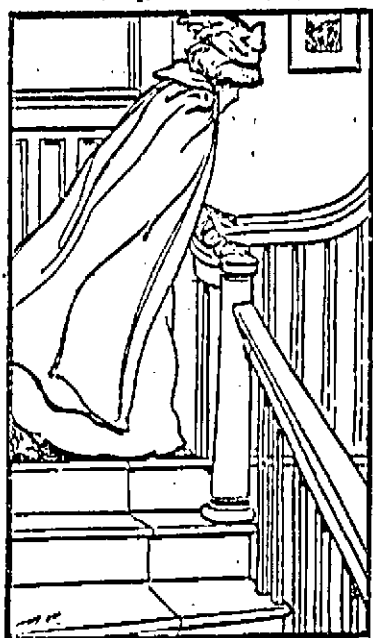

No time for weighing chances. The choice of two alternatives lay before her: either to return to the alcove or to seek safety in the darkness of the upper floors—unfurnished, as she had been at pains to determine. The latter seemed by far the better, the less dangerous, course to pursue. And at once she took it.

There was no light on the first-floor landing—it having presumably been extinguished by the janitor early in the evening. Only a feeble twilight obtained there, in part a reflected glow from the entrance hall, partly thin and diffused rays escaping from Maitland's study. So it was that the first few steps upward took the girl into darkness so close and unrelieved as to seem almost palpable.

At the turn of the staircase she paused, holding the rail and resting for an instant, the while she listened, ore ascending at a more sedate pace to a haven of safety more complete in the evening.

At the Turn of the Staircase She Paused.

that it would be more remote from the battle-ground below.

And, resting so, was suddenly chilled through and through with fear, sheer childish dread of the intangible and unknown terrors that lurked in the blackness above her. It was as if, rendered superstitious by strain and excitement, the quivering filaments of her subconsciousness, like spiritual tentacles feeling ahead of her, had encountered and recoiled from a shape of evil, a specter of horror obscene and malign, crouching, ready to spring, there, in the shadow of night. . . . And her breath was smothered in her throat and her heart smote so madly against the frail walls of its cage that they seemed like to burst, while she stood transfixed, frozen in function, limbs stiffening, roots of her hair stirring, fingers gripping the banister rail until they pained her; and with eyes that stared wide into the black heart of nothingness, until the night seemed pricked with agonized pinpoints of dim fire, peopled with monstrous and terrible shadows closing about her. . . .

Yet—it was absurd! She must not yield to such puerile superstitions. There was nothing there. . . . There was something there. . . . something that like an incantation of hatred was stalking her. . . . If only she dared scream! If only she dared turn and fly, back to the comfort of light and human company! . . .

There arose a tramping of feet in the hallway; and she heard Maitland's voice like a far echo, as he bade the police good night. And distant and unreachably as he seemed, the sound of his words brought her strength and some reassurance, and she grew slightly more composed. Yet, the instant that he had turned away to talk to the cabman, her fright of that unspeakable and incalculable menace flooded her consciousness like a great wave, sweeping her—motophonically—off her feet. And indeed, for the time, she felt as if drowning, overwhelmed in vast waters, sinking, sinking into the black abysses of syncope. . . .

Then, as a drowning person—wreathed—clutches at straws, she grasped again at the vibrations of his voice. . . .

What was he saying? "You will wait outside, please, until I come out or send somebody, whom you will take wherever directed. . . ."

Speaking to the cabman, thinking of her, providing for her escape! Considerate and foresighted as always! How she could have thanked him! The warmth of gratitude that enveloped her almost unmerged her; she was put to it to restrain her impulse to rush down the stairs and . . .

But no; she must not risk the chance of rebuff. How could she foretell what was in his mind and heart, how probe the depths of his feeling toward her? Perhaps he would receive her protestations in skeptical spirit. Heaven knew he had cause to! Dared she . . . To be repulsed! . . .

But no. He had provided this means for flight; she would advantage herself of it and . . . and thank him by letter. Best so; for he must ever think the worst of her; she could never, undeceivably, pride restrain-ing and upholding her.

Better so; she would go, go quickly, before he discovered her absence from the flat. . . .

And incontinently she swung about and flew down the stairs, stealthily, treading as lightly on the heavily-padded steps as though she had been thistledown whirled adrift by the wind, altogether heedless of the creeping terror she had sensed on the upper flight, careless of all save her immediate need to reach that cab before Maitland should discover that she had escaped.

The door was just closing behind the cabby as she reached the bottom step; and she paused, considering that it were best to wait a moment, at least, lest he should be surprised at the quickness with which his employer found work for him; paused and on some mysterious impulse half turned, glancing back up the stairs.

Not a thought too soon; another instant's hesitation and she had been caught. Some one—a man—was descending; and rapidly, Maitland? Even in her brief glance she saw the white shield of a shirt bosom gleam dull against the shadows. Maitland was in evening dress. Could it be possible . . . ?

No time now for conjecture, time now only for action. She sprang for the door, had it open in a trice, and before the cabby was really enthroned upon his lofty box, the girl was on the step, fair troubled face upturned to him in wild entreaty. "Hurry!" she cried, distracted. "Drive off, at once! Please—oh, please!"

Perhaps the man had expected something of the sort, analyzing Maitland's words and manner. At all events he was quick to appreciate. This was what he had been engaged for, and what he had been paid for royally, in advance.

Seizing reins and whip, he jerked the startled cabman between the shafts out of his abstraction and— "I say, cabby! One moment!"

The cabman turned; the figure on the stoop of the house was undoubtedly Maitland's—Maitland as he had just seen him, with the addition of a hat. As he looked the man was at the wheel, clambering in.

"Changed my mind—I'm coming along, cabby," he said cheerfully. "Drive us to the St. Luke building, please—hurry!"

"Yes!"

Bitter as poverty the cruel lash cut round the horse's flanks; and as the harness shot out at breakneck speed toward Fifth avenue, the girl covered back in her corner, shivering, staring wide-eyed at the man who had so coolly placed himself at her side.

This, then, was that nameless danger that had stalked her on the staircase, that, even when consciously ignorant of its proximity, she had been repelled and frightened by its subtle emanations! And now—and now she was in his power!

Dazed with fear she started up, acting blindly on the primitive instinct to fly; and in another moment, doubtless, would have thrown herself boldly from the cab to the sidewalk, had her companion not seized her by the forearm and by simple force compelled her to resume her seat.

"Do still, you little fool!" he told her sharply. "Do you think that I'm going to let you go a third time? Not till I'm through with you. . . . And if you scream, by the powers, I'll throttle you!"

But One Oil Painting of Boone.

There never was but one oil portrait of Daniel Boone painted from life, and that was by Chester Harding, a distinguished artist of Boston, who came to Missouri in June, 1820, and painted it in the residence of Flanders Callaway, Boone's son-in-law, where Boone was then living, near the village of Marthasville, in Warren county.

MODERN WAY OF LIVING

Has a Tendency to Weaken the Strongest.

One hundred years ago there was less kidney trouble than there is today.

The worry, hurry, and overwork of modern living doubles the work of the kidneys, wears and weakens the muntill unable to properly do their duty of filtering the poisons from the blood. As a result the whole system runs down.

Need the slightest symptom of kidney trouble—the first backache, the first irregularity of the urine. It may be the forerunner of dangerous disease. You can cure yourself quickly with Doan's Kidney Pills.

Read the experience of a Janesville citizen.

Chas. W. Allen, living in Janesville, Wis., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and they are all right. I can endorse them as a good kidney and backache remedy and one that can be relied upon. I suffered from these troubles for a long time, and although I used different preparations I received no relief. Finally I procured Doan's Kidney Pills from the People's Drug Co. and began their use. In a few days the trouble left me and has never returned. I can certainly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to others."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, N.Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Use and Recommend

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

MISS MILDRED HOLLAND,

the Charming and deservedly Popular Theatrical Star, writes as follows:

I am delighted with Newbro's Herpicide. It is just what I have been looking for. I find that it not only prevents dandruff, but that it stops the hair from falling out. It is a most delightful hair dressing, and no lady's toilet table is complete without it."

(Signed) MILDRED HOLLAND.

A woman to be pretty must have pretty hair. There is a subtle charm about beautiful hair that lends more to personal adornment than all of the skill of all of the "beauty doctors" combined. The hair need not be of extraordinary or abnormal length, but it must have that distinctiveness of appearance that comes from intelligent care, and is the result of perfect hair health.

The most cultured ladies in every community use Newbro's Herpicide; and when you see a head of hair that glows with beauty and is radiant with life, it is a fairly good indication that Newbro's Herpicide has been used.

A common cause of dullness of the hair is the presence of fine dust and soil in the strands that is kept in constant motion by teary ears, automobiles, etc. This fine dust frequently enters with disease germs—adheres to the hair and dulls its natural luster.

A delightful way to cleanse and beautify the hair is to moisten a cloth with Newbro's Herpicide and draw it carefully through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. It may be done daily, or less often, as desired.

The result of this cleansing process will prove a surprise, not only in the amount of dirt removed but in the added beauty of the hair and the sense of cleanliness and comfort that follows. Shampooing will also remove this dust, but too frequent washing of the hair is harmful.

Newbro's Herpicide is the Original remedy that "kills the dandruff germ." It eradicates dandruff and stops falling hair. It is the only real scalp prophylactic in existence. A delightful and refreshing hair dressing. Stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Guaranteed under the Food and Drug Act, June 30, 1906. Serial No. 915.

Two Sizes, 50c and $1.00 at DRUG STORES.—Send 10c in Stamps to THE HERPICIDE CO., Dept. L., Detroit, Mich., for sample.

Scotland's Twin Cities.

In America we would probably speak of Edinburgh and Leith as twin cities. Their corporate boundaries join and a stranger cannot tell where one begins and the other ends. Thus they are practically one city, with a combined population of 430,000, of which 350,000 is ascribed to Edinburgh and 80,000 to Leith.

MR. WRIGHT

The gentleman's name is not Wright, but we will call it that.

Mr. Wright inserted a Want Ad. this week advertising a residence for rent. He described the residence thoroughly, telling the location, the number of rooms, the improvements, the price at which the house rented, and several other things.

That is the right way to insert an ad. Tell the whole story so that the reader can form an opinion as to whether or not he wants to rent that particular house. Don't say, "Well, if he is interested he will look it up." The trouble is, he won't look it up. He doesn't want to walk a mile or two after he has worked hard all day, unless he is pretty sure of being suited.

Mr. Wright did it right and here is

THE RESULT

Before Mr. Wright had received his paper that evening from the carrier boy, his house was rented. Some man had read the ad. and the house was just what he wanted—the number of rooms, the rent, the location, the improvements, all were exactly what he had been looking for and he hurried to Mr. Wright to close the deal before some one else had gotten it.

Serious Fire in Pond du Lac.
Pond du Lac, Wis., Sept. 25.—Fire which threatened to destroy most of the city broke out here Friday. At two o'clock in the morning it was under control, but not until the public school building, St. Joseph's church, the Congregational church, the Crescent Garage and seven dwellings were destroyed. The loss is $250,000.

Widow of Gen. Bragg Dies.
New Orleans, Sept. 25.—Mrs. Eliza Bragg, widow of Maj. Gen. Braxton Bragg, of the Confederate army, died in this city late Friday afternoon.

Old Cushion Dance.
The cushion dance was originally an old country dance in triple time, which was introduced into court at the time of Elizabeth. The dance was very simple. A peltor, or took a cushion and after dancing for a few minutes stopped and threw the cushion before one of the spectators. The one so selected had to kneel on the cushion and allow the dancer to kiss her. After which he repeated the dance.

Why He Remained at Home.
"So you don't care for society?" "I shouldn't say that," answered Mr. Churcot. "I haven't any objection to society, but I don't like chicken salad and ice cream."

DR. CHURCOT, LEADER OF THE FRENCH EXPEDITION.

Havre, France.—Dr. Churcot, the famous French explorer, left here last week bound for Antarctic regions. He sailed on his own boat, fully equipped for a battle with the Antarctic elements.

Dr. Churcot inclines to the theory that the south pole is the center of a vast continent, and if this should prove to be the case, it may be possible to trace the history of the terrestrial changes which took place when Russia, Scandinavia and Germany were ice masses and the center of France was covered with glaciers. Every great problem relating to the problems of life are associated with some of Dr. Churcot's researches, and he wishes to test some of the theories that earlier journeys in the same district suggested to him. He goes first to Greenland to study fossils, Loubetland, explored by Dr. Churcot four years ago, will next be visited. Thereafter the expedition will go to Alexanderland to winter, and will explore the country in motor sledges when weathered permits. Every possible precaution against rigors of winter and unexpected delay in barren lands seem to have been taken.

Beyond the Limit.
A man may think he is thinking and still have glimmerings of intelligence. When he thinks other people think he is thinking there is no hope for him. Day it in Janesville.

DR. WILLIAM E. CHANCELLOR.

South Norwalk, Conn.—Dr. William E. Chancellor, formerly superintendent of public schools in the district of Columbia, and at present superintendent of schools in South Norwalk, finds himself facing a probable separation from his children because of the remarkable conditions of the will of his wife, who has just died.

It has just been announced that the wife of Dr. Chancellor, who died last week in Washington, has willed her five children to us many different relatives in widely different parts of the country. The gifts are made on irrevocable conditions. The child is to be taken and kept until she is 21, come what will, or not to be taken at all. An allowance is made for the care of each child. All of the children are under 10 and are unusually bright.

Mrs. Chancellor died suddenly from typhoid fever. She held that Dr. Chancellor was too much wrapped up in his studies and his books, and for this reason she made her own disposition of her children.

AMERICAN TURBINE FOR JAPANESE NAVY.

The two largest and most powerful recently left the works of the Forney & Co. turbine type yet constructed in the United States have been shipped to Japan for the Imperial navy.

yards at Kure in Japan. They have been under construction for two years on an order from the government of Japan and the work has been superintended by Commanders Yushida and Kamimura and Mr. K. Yamaguchi, representing the Japanese firm of Mitsui & Co., the nominal contractors. The turbine engines were shipped on the English steamer Halsey, Captain Parker and are for installation on the Japanese cruiser Iwate, a new battleship of 14,500 tons, with a speed of 23 knots per hour. These turbines will develop an aggregate of 27,000 horse power. They are 12 feet in diameter and weight together 450 tons.

Accompanying the contract though by another route, are John S. Pugs, chief engineer of the Forney river works, and J. S. Wilson, the consulting engineer who on arrival in Japan will superintend the work of installation. With them as interpreter is a young Japanese engineer, S. Yehyama, who came to the Forney river works several years ago as an apprentice from his native land. Two more turbines are in course of construction at the same plant for the Japanese battleship Aki.
